MENTAL HEALTH WEBINAR 2020

I personally have a very keen interest in studying the mental processes, behaviours and the mind. Can be termed as Psychology. The human brain and its functions, the emotions and feelings, all of this fascinates me.

Hence, May being a Mental Health Awareness month, I had to come up with something. I literally had the idea of setting up tasks for a whole month suddenly on the night of May 1st. These tasks would be a great exercise for the people who are suffering from some mental health issue.

The following day I called Tanish because I was sure he would help me promote my idea and we would together make something out of it. We spoke it out with Sushrut and Siddhi, as they came up with the idea of weekly webinars. It all made sense together. A perfectly made up plan of weekly tasks and webinars on the weekends for the ones who need positivity.

The plan being inclusive of helping out the fellow members of our lives and spreading awareness about how mental health is important, took off the flight as we posted out the announcement video.

With heavy support of our friends, followers and family we interacted with a lot of people in our webinars. We invited amazingly qualified guests like-Maitreyi Bhat, Toshali Gandhi, Sarang Sathaye and Durvesh Yadav!

Their words are helping each and every one of us in multiple ways, which lead to a fountain of optimism in our lives.

The mental health program packed with enthusiasm, optimism, enjoyment and happiness made a month in the quarantine tad bit better.

Book Review

TUESDAYS WITH MORRIE

- The book review section is a new addition, in this section we give you reviews of some of the books which our users have read.
- We also suggest different books which you can try out too!

Tuesdays with Morrie is an intriguing book that takes us through the actual story of a sociology professor who suffers with a terminal illness called ALS. One of his students from college follows his story after watching him on TV when a local news channel interviews the professor about his illness.

After ghosting his favourite teacher for almost 13 years, he returns to revisit him out of guilt but eventually surrenders to their old tradition of having intuitive sessions on Tuesdays. And thus begins their discussion of a series of topics about life, answered by the professor.

This book completely changes your perspective of looking at life and the people around you. Being a true story, it's overwhelming to hear life stories from a man whose not going to live much longer but still keeps on inspiring people to turn their lives around.

For those who feel like changing the world to a better place but lose their will when they figure that they cannot do it by themselves, this book is the push you need. Although for others, it may come off a bummer since there's no suspense as such on the story and it pretty much consists of life lessons and aphorisms.

Nevertheless, Mitch Albom, very beautifully proffers the heartwarming and pure relationship between a student and a teacher which is sure to bring tears to your eyes.

THE LEARNING CURVE

One Inspirational story for every month.

Perspective Shift.

Tom Watson, former CEO of IBM suffered a loss of 10 million dollars because of a mistake made by an employee. The employee felt very disappointed in himself, as Tom never frustratingly reacted to this huge loss.

The employee was called up to Tom's office.

The door knocked. Tom said, "Come in", and the employee entered the room looking down with disappointment.

The total silence was broken by the employee starting with, "Tom, I'm very sorry, I did really bad. I don't deserve this. I'm leaving the job before I put the company in any further loss." As he bursted into tears.

Tom continued, "Breathe. I won't let you leave the job." The employee, quite questioned and shocked, replied with, "What!? I must leave this job, I will never be able to pay the debt of 10 million dollars"

Tom continued, "I cannot let you go. Because I just spent 10 millions dollars on your education."

WAKE UP CALL!

Why do we all want a job in the USA? Why do we want to lead ourselves to the growth of some other economy, when we have our own to work on?

Why do we never fail to find Indians in every corner of the world? Why is our economy very slow as compared to many other European or American economies?

Firstly, what makes us Indians settle for jobs?

The fixed mindset comes flashing into the picture. We Indians have always had this mentality saying, “Nokri nahi, to Chokri nahi” and some similar quotes in your local language that push you towards settling for a job.

What makes us settle for someone dictating our lives? What makes us work for someone else’s dream? The only simple answer, ‘lack of ambition’. We never think of taking the responsibility and taking the risk because we’re too busy settling in quickly.

UAE has around 40% Indians, France has around 28% Indians, Guyana with around 43.5% and Mauritius with a shocking majority of 68.3% Indians.

Why?

Better opportunities? Better quality of life? Better study experience? Money? Global exposure? These might be some perspectives people have when they think of moving abroad.

If our people are demanding better lifestyles, then the foreign countries are the ones supplying them. Resulting in draining India of resources and minds.
So, what's the solution to keep the minds in India?
Promoting entrepreneurship. Creating opportunities.
Isn't this our job as the youth of the country? Should we not at least try to change the complete scenario by filling the gaps with opportunities?
India is very amazing. Our perspectives and acts are what make it so weak and subtle. We need to make the change, because we are the future.

What is WHAT? What is WHY? You'll get to know that soon enough!
Stay tuned.
